Attorney can help you get a divorce!

You can divorce even without agreement!

1. Divorce by mutual consent is the principle.

Without the agreement of your spouse, you generally cannot divorce.

2. But don't give up.

If grounds under Civil Code Article 770 are recognized and you win in court, you can divorce. For this, you need to gather evidence favorable to you, construct clever legal arguments, and persuade the judge. That's why you should hire a professional negotiator - a lawyer.

3. Claims from the spouse at fault are generally not possible.

① However, there are exceptions if three conditions are met:

- Separation has continued for a considerably long period
- There are no minor children
- The divorce would not place the other party in an extremely harsh situation

② There is also the method of settlement. In cases of divorce at a younger age, agreements are sometimes reached for about 10-15 million yen, while for later-life divorces, about 40-50 million yen.

Increasing! Property Division & Compensation

1. What can you receive 1/2 of in property division?

- Ⓐ Real estate
- Ⓑ Savings accounts
- Ⓒ Retirement benefits
- Ⓓ Pension

The correct answer is all of them. Did you know you could receive Ⓒ and Ⓓ?

Half of the couple's assets are yours. Don't settle for unfair property division.

2. Don't let hidden assets slip away

We'll uncover hidden assets through attorney association inquiries and court investigation orders.

3. Market rates are just market rates

The average compensation amount is 1-2 million yen. Surprisingly small, isn't it? However, compensation can increase depending on negotiation tactics and how claims are presented.

Resolving Children's Issues Clearly!

1. Not just child support.

Before divorce, you can also claim living expenses (marriage expenses). Marriage expenses need to be filed for immediately. To make monetary payments such as marriage expenses and child support effective, they need to be decided through mediation or recorded in a notarized document. This way, assets and wages can be seized immediately.

2. Gaining custody

Custody is determined by affinity (the child's attachment) and eligibility (having suitable conditions for raising children). However, in reality, the parent who takes the children with them has an overwhelming advantage.

3. You can meet your children even without custody

Through mediation or trial, you can meet your children once or twice a month. For the children's sake, this level of contact is better. Even if you failed as a couple, cooperation as parents is essential. Therefore, it's necessary to divorce without letting the situation become too messy.
